More information: Now only 30 years old, Jongdo An creates excitement wherever he plays. His wins in international competitions include the 2012 Concours Long-Thibaud-Crespin International Piano Competition in Paris (Concert with Orchestre Philharmonique de Radio France) and the Prix SAS le Prince Albert II de Monaco.

Since these prestigious performances, he has performed in Paris, Vienna, St. Petersburg and other major world capitals. Originally from South Korea, he now lives and studies in Germany, and has appeared as soloist with Radio France Philharmonic Orchestra, the London Symphony Orchestra, Hamburg Symphony Orchestra, St. Petersburg Symphony Orchestra, and Mozarteum Orchestra Salzburg.

Steinway & Sons has featured An in a Steinway Prize Winner Concert, a European tradition of bringing the best young pianists to concert goers. Adam Wibrowski, president of the International Paderewski Piano Competition proclaimed An, “one of the leading pianists of his generation.”
